About Us

Our Directors have over 30 years of experience as animal and horse bailiffs, dealing with the removal of fly grazing or abandoned animals from land. Our experienced team can deal with all the issues for you.

Typically, where a client has an issue with abandoned animals the process starts with a request for a quote. If agreed there will be a site visit where we will usually:

1. Serve the required 96 hour notices.
2. Conduct a full Health & Safety risk assessment - check the horses have adequate food and water.
3. Detain the horses on site or, if instructed, remove to a safe location.
4. Inform relevant authorities.
5. Photograph horses and notices in place.
6. Our bailiffs will then deal with any telephone calls that come as a result of the notices.
7. If horses have not been removed after the statutory time limit, the ownership of the horses reverts to the landowner.
8. The landlord may then instruct us further and we will arrange for the horses to be removed from site to either a new owner, livery storage, given to a horse charity or in some cases, to be humanely destroyed

Removal of Horses

The removal of horses that have either been abandoned or left to graze on your land without permission is usually done under the Control of Horses Act 2015 which makes the process quick, simple and certainly the most cost effective.

On 26 May 2015 The Control of Horses Act 2015 came into effect. The act has been welcomed by landowners, businesses, farmers and local authorities.

Prior to the act coming into force the eviction of Fly Grazing horses was usually done under provisions of The Animals Act 1971 and or under TORTS The Interference with Goods Act 1977.

Our Services Include but not limited to:

- Control of Horses Act Notices & Risk assessments
- The Removal of Fly Grazing Horses.
- Removal of animals from Land or Property
- Squatter and Fly Trader Eviction Services
- Recovery of Commercial Rent Arrears
- Forfeiture of Commercial leases
- Direct Action under the Town and Country Planning Act. 1990

Actions start from as little as £350
